

6 Weeks into School

Make this communication about your child & share 1 thing you've learned about trauma, brain development or adoption.

Thank you for a great start to the school year. You've made it 6 weeks! I wanted to touch base & see how things were going for you & _____. Is there anything we can do at home to support what you are doing at school?

I'd love to share a little more about _____ & what makes her unique.

Option 1:

Over the past year or so, I have learned a lot of information on trauma, brain development & adoption.

OR

Option 2:

Because of the short time _____ has been in our home & the complexity of her early formative years, we are learning to parent with a different approach. Our goal is build trust & connection to meet her unique needs.

One thing that has really stuck with me is _____. I see it play out in _____'s life when _____.

Share ONE thing you've learned about trauma, brain development, social-emotional learning, etc & how it specifically relates to your child & the classroom.

The research is called TBRI or Trust Based Relational Intervention by the Karyn Purvis Institute of Child Development. If you are interested in learning more, here's 3 minute video that explains the research that has been done to help children from hard backgrounds find healing. <https://child.tcu.edu/tbri-animate/>

Thanks for taking the time to gain a little bit more understanding into _____'s background.
